

Carol Kinsey Goman

Carol Kinsey Goman, Ph.D. is an international keynote speaker, executive coach, and leadership consultant. As an authority on leadership, change-management, collaboration, and nonverbal communication, Carol has been cited in media such as Industry Week, Investor's Business Daily, CNN's Business Unusual, NPR's Marketplace, Fox news, SmartBrief on Leadership, the Wall Street Journal, Oprah.com, and the NBC Nightly News. She is an upbeat, entertaining, and informative speaker on understanding body language in leadership and sales, leading people through change, and the power of collaboration.

She has served as adjunct faculty at John F. Kennedy University in the International MBA program, at U.C. Berkeley in the Executive Education Department, and for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at their Institutes for Organization Management – and is a current faculty member with the Institute for Management Studies.

Carol is a leadership blogger for Forbes, an expert contributor to the "On Leadership" column for the Washington Post, a business body language columnist for the UK magazine, the Market, and the author of eleven business books. Her latest book is "The Silent Language of Leaders: How Body Language Can Help – or Hurt How You Lead."

Carol's clients include 105 organizations in 24 countries -- corporate giants such as Consolidated Edison, Royal Bank of Canada and PepsiCo; major non-profit organizations such as the American Institute of Banking, the Healthcare Forum and the American Society of Training and Development; high-tech firms such as Cisco, Hewlett-Packard and Texas Instruments; membership organizations such as The Young Presidents' Organization and The Conference Board; government agencies such as the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, U.S. Army Tank-automotive and Armaments Command, and the Library of Congress; and international firms such as Petroleos de Venezuela, Dairy Farm in Hong Kong, and Wartsilla Diesel in Finland.
